BQ 629 – No. 11/2020

Christine Schirmmacher lectures at Melbourne University

Dialogue with Asian-faculty and the largest mosque in Australia

(Bonn, 21.02.2020) Christine Schirmmacher gave a guest lecture for the professors of the faculty of the Asian Institute of the University of Melbourne. The National Centre for Contemporary Islamic Studies (NCCIS), chaired by Professor Abdullah Saeed, is part of the Asian Institute.

Schirmmacher's topic was the question of religious freedom in Muslim majority countries: Muslim majority countries typically seem to have a problem with granting religious freedom to their citizens, especially when it comes to minorities. Even though the Koran does not contain any clear statement about punishing apostates, the prevailing attitude among Muslim theologians till today is that apostasy has to be punished by the death penalty if the convert openly confesses his new faith. At the same time, the number of Muslim intellectuals is growing who opt for freedom rights (among them religious freedom). The lecture argued that the future of Islamic cultures will depend on listening to the voices of Islamic intellectuals being defenders of religious freedom within the context of Islam. A religion which is coercing its people to belief is going to die out in our globalized world.

Abdullah Saeed is currently the Sultan of Oman Professor of Arab and Islamic Studies at the University of Melbourne and director of its National Centre for Contemporary Christine and Thomas Schirmmacher also visited the Lakemba Mosque in Sydney and had a dialogue meeting with the leadership of the mosque there.

The Lakemba Mosque, also known as the Masjid Ali Bin Abi Talib and officially the Imam Ali bin Abi Talib Mosque, is Australia's largest mosque. It is run by an organisation of Lebanese immigrants and originally was a Shiite mosque, but meanwhile is open to all branches of Islam.
